EXAMINER'S COMMENT

The use of “means plus function” language within the claims gives rise to analysis under 35 USC 112 sixth paragraph. Following the guidelines in MPEP 2181 set forth under In re Donaldson Co. 16 F.3d 1189, 29 USPQ 2d 1845 (Fed. Cir. 1994) “means plus function” language is interpreted as covering the corresponding structure described within the specification or equivalents thereof.

In claim 10 “means for extracting water from the water volume” is considered to cover one or more pumps 39.

In claim 10 “means for extracting steam from the steam volume” is considered to cover one or more water jet injectors 40.

In claim 10 “means for admixing said water with said steam to form a two-phase mixture” is considered to cover one or more water jet injectors 40.

In claim 10 “means for feeding the resulting two-phase mixture into the water volume” is considered to cover one or more two fluid nozzles 41.
